

LYRIC-EPIC PUBLICATIONS (LEP)

Education is the basic investment of economic development and books are the basic tools of education. So book publishing is the key to educational, social and economic development. Although Bangla story, romantic novels, adventure and political books are usually preferred to publish by the local publishers rather than science and technology books mostly due to for their economical ground. In the early 1980's Bangla Academy published some books on veterinary science in Bangla language but these books could not attract users that resulted as end edition. However, I feel that the veterinary students and field workers may need standard professional book that could be used in both in education and field services that were not available in the market during that time. That situation encouraged me to write and publish the veterinary medical books through LEP for them. Ultimately I've produced series of veterinary medical books both in Bangla and English language that are highly accepted by the students and field workers, even recognized by the UGC through award for textbook writer, although mass-scale photo copy system by book seller especially of the Nilkhet Dhaka made the main barrier for publication of the next update edition of all the books that deprived the veterinary medical profession and country from update information.

The veterinary medical book publication work through the LEP was started first with publication of the 'Veterinary Clinician Guide' in Bangla language in September 1986. Since then a total of 13 professional books have been published during 1986 to 2015 which are shown under the book list.
